MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AMENDMENT BILL, 2020

1. PURPOSE OF BILL

The Bill seeks to amend the provisions of the Domestic Violence Act, 1998 (Act No. 116 of 1998) (the Act), in order to address practical challenges, gaps and anomalies which have manifested themselves since the Act was put into operation in 1999. The amendments also seek to enhance the application of the Act in order to protect victims of gender-based violence and other vulnerable persons against domestic violence. Numerous amendments discussed below aim to align the Act with the Protection from Harassment Act, 2011 (Act No. 17 of 2011) (the Harassment Act, 2011). The Bill further seeks to remove the use of binary language (i.e. he or she, him or her etc.).

2. OBJECTS OF BILL

2.1 Clause 1 of the Bill inserts an “Arrangement of Sections” in the Act.

2.2 Clause 2 of the Bill deletes, amends and inserts various definitions in section 1 of the Act to further facilitate the interpretation of the Act, and clause 3 amends section 2 by removing the use of binary language in paragraph (c).

2.3 Clause 4 of the Bill inserts sections 2A and 2B in the Act.

2.3.1 The proposed section 2A, imposes the following obligations on functionaries (who are defined as a medical practitioner, health service provider, social worker, official in the employ of a public health establishment, educator or a care-giver or any other person or entity designated in terms of section 2A(1), to deal in the following manner with the victims of domestic violence:

(a) Where a functionary becomes aware of the fact, or on reasonable grounds believes or suspects, that a child, a person with a disability or an older person is a complainant as contemplated in section 1, the functionary—

- must report the reasons for such knowledge, belief or suspicion to a social worker and the South African Police Service; and
- may, after conducting, and evaluation of, a risk assessment as contemplated in section 18B, provide or refer the complainant for further services as contemplated in section 18B.

(b) Where a functionary becomes aware of the fact that an adult person, other than an adult person with a disability or an older person, is a complainant as contemplated in section 1, the functionary—

- must report the reasons for such knowledge to a social worker or the South African Police Service;
- must if it is reasonably possible to do so
  - provide the complainant with a prescribed list containing the names and contact particulars of accessible shelters and public health establishments;
  - hand a notice containing information as prescribed to the complainant in the official language of the complainant’s choice; and
  - explain to the complainant the content of such notice, including the remedies at the complainant’s disposal in terms of this Act and the right to lodge a criminal complaint, if applicable; and
- may, after conducting, and evaluation of, a risk assessment as contemplated in section 18B, provide or refer the complainant for further services as may be contemplated in section 18B.

2.3.2 The proposed section 2B imposes an obligation on persons, other than a functionary contemplated in section 2A, to report their knowledge or a reasonable belief or suspicion that an act of domestic violence has been committed against a person to a social worker or the South African Police Service.

- 2.3.3 Sections 2A and 2B further provide that a functionary or person—
- (a) who makes a report, as contemplated in those sections, in good faith, is not liable to civil, criminal or disciplinary action on the basis of the report, despite any law, policy or code of conduct prohibiting the disclosure of personal information; and
  - (b) is entitled to have their identity kept confidential, unless the interests of justice require otherwise.

2.4 Clause 5 of the Bill amends section 3, which provides that a peace officer may at the scene of an incident of domestic violence arrest a person without a warrant for an offence containing an element of violence against a complainant. In terms of the proposed amendments to the section:

- (a) A discretion is afforded to a peace officer to arrest any person at the scene of an incident of domestic violence, who such peace officer reasonably suspects of having committed—
  - an act of domestic violence which constitutes an offence in terms of any law, against any person who is in a domestic relationship with such person; or
  - an offence referred to in section 17(1)(a) (which criminalises a contravention of any prohibition, condition, obligation or order of a protection order).
- (b) A peace officer must arrest a person who is reasonably suspected of having committed an act of domestic violence where physical violence is involved.
- (c) A peace officer contemplated in paragraphs (a) and (b) above, who is not a member of the South African Police Service, must—
  - where necessary, make arrangements for the complainant to obtain medical attention; and
  - where a protection order has not been issued against the person who has been arrested for committing an act of domestic violence, or where there is no pending application for a protection order against that person—
    - provide the complainant with a prescribed list containing the names and contact particulars of accessible shelters and public health establishments;
    - if it is reasonably possible to do so, hand a notice containing information as prescribed to the complainant in the official language of the complainant's choice; and
    - if it is reasonably possible to do so, explain to the complainant the contents of such notice, including the remedies at the complainant's disposal in terms of the Act, and the right to lodge a criminal complaint, if applicable; and
  - provide such further assistance as contemplated in section 18B.

2.5 In terms of section 26 of the Criminal Procedure Act, 1977 (Act No. 51 of 1977), a police official who in the investigation of an alleged offence reasonably suspects that a person who may furnish information with reference to any such offence, is on any premises, such police official may without a warrant enter such premises for the purpose of interrogating such a person and obtaining a statement from such a person. However, section 26 also provides that such a police official is prohibited from entering any private dwelling without the consent of the occupier thereof. This restriction severely hampers the powers of the South African Police Service to effectively protect a complainant, since they cannot enter the shared residence without the consent of the occupier, who may be the person who has committed an act of domestic violence against the complainant who is in need of life-saving treatment. Clause 6 inserts a new section 3A in the Act, which provides:

- (a) That, a member of the South African Police Service, who—

- receives a report that an offence containing an element of physical violence has allegedly been committed during an incident of domestic violence; and
- reasonably suspects that a person who may furnish information regarding that alleged offence is in any private dwelling, may, notwithstanding section 26 of the Criminal Procedure Act, 1977, without a warrant, enter those premises for the purposes of interrogating that person and obtaining a statement from them.

(b) The member—

- must before entering those premises, audibly demand admission to the dwelling and notify the purpose for which the member seeks to enter that dwelling; and
- may, if an occupier of the dwelling does not provide admission to the dwelling, use such force as may be reasonably necessary to overcome any resistance against entry to the dwelling, including the breaking of any door or window of that dwelling.

2.6 Clause 7 effects the following amendments to section 4, which deals with applications for protection orders:

- (a) In addition to making an application for a protection order in person, such an application may also be submitted to the clerk of the court remotely by way of a secure online submission (subsection (1)(b)(i)(bb));
- (b) a person who makes an application on behalf of an adult complainant, who is not represented by a legal representative must also be informed of the relief available in terms of the Act and the right to also lodge a criminal complaint against the respondent, if applicable (subsection (2));
- (c) technical amendments are effected to subsection (3), to clarify the category of persons who are entitled to apply for protection orders on behalf of adult persons;
- (d) the reference to “minor” is substituted for the reference of “child” (subsection (4));
- (e) technical amendments are effected to provide that an application for a protection order may be brought outside ordinary court hours if the court has a reasonable belief that the complainant is suffering or may suffer harm if the application is not dealt with immediately and that such an application must immediately be submitted to the court by the clerk of the court (subsections (5) and (6));
- (f) all applications for protection orders must be uploaded onto the integrated electronic repository, established in terms of section 6A (subsection (7)(a)).

2.7 Clause 8 inserts a new section 4A dealing with the issuing of a domestic violence safety monitoring notice. The provision introduces measures to ensure the safety and wellbeing of the complainant when or after applying for a protection order in instances where the complainant and the respondent share a residence. It provides that if the court is satisfied from information on oath or affirmation as set out in the application and such additional evidence contemplated in subsection (5), that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the complainant and the respondent share a joint residence, and there are reasonable grounds to suspect that the respondent poses a threat to the complainant’s personal safety, it may issue a domestic violence safety monitoring notice in the prescribed form. The notice directs the station commander of the police station servicing the area where the complainant resides to assign a police official to regularly contact the complainant and to regularly visit the joint residence to see and communicate with the complainant privately.

2.8 Clause 9 effects the following amendments to section 5 of the Act, which deals with the consideration of applications for, and the issuing of, interim protection orders by the court:

- 2.8.1 In terms of section 5(1A) a court may, when considering an application for a protection order, in the circumstances as prescribed in the Mediation in Certain Divorce Matters Act, 1987 (Act No. 24 of 1987), cause an investigation to be carried out by a Family Advocate contemplated in the Mediation in Certain Divorce Matters Act, 1987, where available, with regard to the welfare of any minor or dependent child affected by the proceedings in question. The subsection is amended by the removal of the unnecessary double reference to the Mediation Act, and to provide that a court may also, when considering an application for a protection order, cause an investigation to be carried out as contemplated in section 47 of the Children's Act, 2005 (Act No. 30 of 2005). Section 47 of the Children's Act, 2005, provides that, if it appears to any court in the course of proceedings that a child involved in or affected by those proceedings is in need of care and protection as is contemplated in section 150, the court must order that the question whether the child is in need of care and protection be referred to a designated social worker for an investigation contemplated in section 155(2) of that Act.
- 2.8.2 In terms of section 5(3), upon the issuing of an interim protection order by the court, the clerk of the court must immediately notify the complainant and the court must direct that copies of the application, affidavits, record of any evidence and the interim protection order be served on the respondent to show cause on the return date specified in the order why the interim protection order, should not be made final. This provision is amended to provide that those documents must be served on the respondent in the prescribed manner, by the clerk of the court, sheriff or peace officer identified by the court either by hand or electronically. Similar amendments are effected to subsections (4) and (7) to provide for electronic service of documents.
- 2.8.3 In terms of section 5(6), an interim protection order has no force and effect until it has been served on the respondent. The provision is amended to provide that an interim protection order is of force and effect from the time the existence and contents thereof have been served on the respondent.

2.9 Clause 10 inserts new sections 5A, 5B and 5C in the Act.

- 2.9.1 Section 5A provides that a person may be subpoenaed as a witness at the court proceedings or to provide any book, document, object or thing, if the evidence of that person or a book, document, object or thing appears to the court to be essential to the just decision of the case. A person so subpoenaed must attend the proceedings and remain in attendance at the proceedings, and a person who is in attendance at any proceedings under this Act, though not subpoenaed as a witness, and who is warned by the court to remain in attendance at the proceedings, must remain in attendance at the proceedings, unless excused by the court. It is an offence for a person so subpoenaed to fail to attend or remain in attendance, or to fail to appear at the place and on the date and at the time to which the proceedings in question may be adjourned, or to fail to remain in attendance at those proceedings as so adjourned, or to fail to produce any book, document, object or thing specified in the subpoena.
- 2.9.2 Section 5B imposes obligations on electronic communications service providers to provide assistance to a court in respect of electronic communication which were used to commit an act of domestic violence. The section provides for the following:
- (a) Where an application for a protection order is made in terms of section 4 and it is necessary to determine whether an electronic communication, which was used to commit an act of domestic violence, was disclosed by the respondent, the court may adjourn the proceedings to any time and date on the terms and conditions which the court deems appropriate and issue a direction in the prescribed form, directing an electronic communications service provider, that is believed to be able to furnish such particulars, to furnish the court in the prescribed manner by means of an affidavit in the prescribed form with—

- the electronic communications identity number from where the electronic communication originated and particulars of the person to whom the electronic communications identity number has been assigned;
  - any information which indicates that the electronic communication was or was not sent from the electronic communications identity number of the person to the electronic communications identity number of the complainant;
  - any information that is available to an electronic communications service provider that may be of assistance to the court to identify the person who disclosed the electronic communication or the electronic communications service provider, that provides a service to that person;
  - any information that is available to an electronic communications service provider which may be of assistance to the court to identify the electronic communications service provider whose service is used to host or was or is used to disclose the electronic communication in question; or
  - an assessment whether or not the electronic communications service provider is in a position to remove the electronic communication or a link to the electronic communication or to disable access to such electronic communication or a link to such electronic communication.
- (b) A direction contemplated in paragraph (a) must be served on the electronic communications service provider in the prescribed manner. However, if the court is satisfied that the direction cannot be served in the prescribed manner, the court may make an order allowing service to be effected in the form and manner specified in that order.
- (c) The information referred to in paragraph (a) must be provided to the court within five ordinary court days from the time that the direction is served on an electronic communications service provider. An electronic communications service provider may, however, apply to the court for an extension of the period of five ordinary court days for a further period of five ordinary court days on the grounds that the information cannot be provided timeously or the cancellation of the direction on the grounds that—
- it does not provide an electronic communications service to the complainant or the respondent;
  - the requested information is not available in the records of the electronic communications service provider; or
  - its service is not used to host or was or is not used to disclose the electronic communication in question.
- (d) The court may, on receipt of an affidavit from an electronic communications service provider which contains the information referred to in paragraph (a), consider the issuing of an interim protection order in terms of section 5(2) against the respondent on the date to which the proceedings have been adjourned. The information furnished to the court in terms of paragraph (a) forms part of the evidence that a court may consider in terms of section 5(1).
- (e) If the court issues an interim protection order, the court must at the same time, in the prescribed form and manner, issue an order to the electronic communications service provider whose electronic communications service is used to host or disclose the electronic communication whereby an act of domestic violence was committed, to immediately remove or disable access to the electronic communication. An electronic communications service provider who is ordered to remove or disable access an electronic communication in terms of paragraph (a), may, within 14 days after service of the order, apply to the court in the prescribed manner by means of an affidavit in a prescribed form for the setting aside or amendment of the order referred to in paragraph (a).

- (f) The Director-General: Justice and Constitutional Development must compile and maintain a list of electronic communications service providers that can provide the courts with the information referred to in paragraph (a), which must be made available to all courts.
- (g) The Cabinet member responsible for the administration of justice must, by notice in the Gazette, also prescribe reasonable tariffs of compensation payable to electronic communications service providers for, among others, providing the information referred to in paragraph (a) and for removing or disabling access to the electronic communication which was used to commit an act of domestic violence as contemplated in paragraph (e).

2.9.3 In terms of section 5C, a court must before it issues a protection order referred to in section 5(2) or 6(1), establish whether there is any other order against the complainant or respondent, which was previously issued by a court and may have a bearing on the application before such court. Where any such order is in place, the court must record such an order on the court file and where it issues a protection order, or impose any condition or make any order which it is competent to impose or make under section 7, ensure that the protection order does not contradict such an existing order. Where a court is satisfied that urgent relief against an act of domestic violence is necessary, it may notwithstanding any other order, issue a protection order or impose any condition or make any order which it is competent to impose or make under section 7 and order that they remain in force for a limited period as it may determine in order to afford the complainant an opportunity to apply for the amendment, variation or setting aside of such an order.

2.10 Clause 11 effects the following amendments to section 6 of the Act, which deals with the issuing of a final protection order:

- (a) The word “final” is inserted in the heading and various subsections, before the word “protection order”;
- (b) subsections (1A), (2A) and (2B) are inserted in the provision to further regulate instances where the complainant or the respondent or both parties do not appear on the return date to which the proceedings have been adjourned to for considering the issuing of a final protection order; and
- (c) provision is further made that a copy of the warrant, together with the final protection order, must be captured in the integrated electronic repository of protection orders to ensure that such documents are accessible within the criminal justice system.

2.11 Clause 12 inserts a new section 6A in the Act, which provides for the establishment of an integrated electronic repository for domestic violence protection orders and further regulates access thereto. The aim of this facility is to facilitate accessibility of orders by functionaries in the criminal justice system.

2.12 Clause 13 effects the following amendments to section 7, which provides for the court’s powers in respect of protection orders:

- (a) Subsection (1) is amended to provide that a court may by means of a protection order prohibit a respondent from also—
  - attempting to commit an act of domestic violence (subsection (1)(a));

- entering the complainant's or a related person's workplace or place of studies (subsection (1)(f)); and
  - distributing certain electronic communications (subsection (1)(h)).
- (b) Subsection (2) provides that a court may impose additional conditions to protect the complainant, such as seizing any weapon and that a peace officer must accompany the complainant to collect personal property. This subsection is amended to provide that the court may also recommend to the complainant to approach a relevant police station to investigate the matter with a view to the possible institution of a criminal prosecution against the respondent.
- (c) Subsection (4A) is inserted in the section to enable the court to conduct an enquiry in terms of section 35 of the Prevention and Treatment for Substance Abuse Act, 2008 (Act No. 70 of 2008), and in deserving cases, to commit the respondent to a treatment centre for substance abuse.
- (d) Subsection (5) is amended by the addition of paragraph (c), which provides that, where the complainant or related person is a child, the complainant's or related person's physical, home, study and work addresses must not be disclosed until a children's court inquiry into the matter has been held.

2.13 Section 8 deals with the issuing of a warrant of arrest upon the issuing of a protection order and the arrest of a respondent who contravenes any prohibition, condition, obligation or order imposed in terms of section 7.

Clause 14 effects the following amendments to section 8:

- (a) A technical amendment is effected to subsection (1) to also include a reference to an interim protection order.
- (b) Where a respondent contravenes a protection order, the complainant may hand the warrant of arrest together with an affidavit in the prescribed form, wherein it is stated that the respondent has contravened any prohibition, condition, obligation or order contained in a protection order, to any member of the South African Police Service. Subsection (4)(b) empowers a police official to "forthwith" arrest a respondent on the strength of a warrant issued under this section if it appears to the police official that there are reasonable grounds to suspect that the complainant may suffer "imminent" harm as a result of the breach of the protection order by the respondent. The words "forthwith" and "imminent" in the context of subsections (4) and (5), gave rise to various interpretation problems. To address these interpretation issues, the word "forthwith" is substituted with the word "immediately" and the word "imminent" is deleted wherever it appears in subsections (4) and (5).
- (c) Subsection (5), sets out the requirements that a police official must take into account when determining whether a complainant may suffer harm, and includes the risk to the safety, health or well-being of the complainant, the seriousness of the conduct and the length of time since the alleged breach of the protection order. The subsection is amended to provide that the police officer must also consider—
- the risk to the safety, health or wellbeing of a related person; and
  - the nature and extent of the harm previously suffered in the domestic relationship by the complainant or a related person.

2.14 Section 9 of the Act deals with the seizure of arms and dangerous weapons.

Clause 15 effects the following amendments to this section:

- (a) The distinction between "arms" and "dangerous weapons" is done away with and conjunctively dealt with under the definition of "weapon" which is defined in section 1 as any airgun, ammunition, imitation firearm, muzzle loading firearm, firearm or handgun as defined in section 1 of the Firearms Control Act, 2000 (Act No. 60 of 2000) or any other object which is likely to inflict grievous bodily harm or a dangerous wound, if it were used to commit an assault. The definitions of "dangerous weapon" and "arm", are consequentially deleted in section 1.

- (b) Subsection (1) is amended to provide that a court may order a member of the South African Police Service to seize any weapon, regardless of the requirements of the respondent's employment to possess such weapon, if the respondent has threatened or expressed the intention to kill or injure themselves, any person in the domestic relationship or a related person, or that possession of such weapon is not in the best interests of the respondent or any other person in a domestic relationship, as a result of the respondent's state of mind or mental condition, inclination to violence or use of or dependence on intoxicating liquor or drugs.
- (c) Subsection (2) is amended by the substitution for the reference to the repealed Arms and Ammunition Act, 1969 (Act No. 75 of 1969) of the Firearms Control Act, 2000, and to provide that a copy of the record of evidence relating the proceedings for an application for an interim protection order must now be submitted to the relevant station commander for consideration in terms of section 102 of the Firearms Control Act, 2000, to determine whether the person is unfit to possess a firearm.
- (d) Subsection (3) is amended to provide that the court may order that the weapon be forfeited to the State, if the value of such a weapon seized is below an amount determined by the Minister in the Gazette.
- (e) Subsection (4) is inserted to provide that when a final protection order has been issued against the respondent, the clerk of the court must, in the prescribed manner, inform the relevant station commander and National Commissioner of the South African Police Service thereof. The relevant station commander must, on receipt of the information determine whether the respondent holds a licence, permit, competency certificate or other authorisation in terms of the Firearms Control Act, 2000, for any firearm, determine whether the person is unfit to possess a firearm and inform the National Commissioner of the South African Police Service of the station commander's decision regarding the fitness of that person to possess a firearm.

2.15 Clause 16 effects the following amendments to section 10, which regulates the variation or setting aside of a protection order:

- (a) Subsection (1) provides that a complainant or a respondent may, upon written notice to the other party and the court concerned, apply for the variation or setting aside of a protection order. This subsection is amended to provide that a party must, if they oppose the application, within 10 days of being served with a notice of application, give written notice to the other party and the court setting out grounds and facts on which the application is opposed.
- (b) In terms of subsection (2), the court may, if it is satisfied that good cause has been shown for the variation or setting aside of a protection order, and where the application is made by a complainant, that the application is made freely and voluntarily, issue an order to this effect. The subsection is amended to provide that the court must further be satisfied that the circumstances have changed materially since the granting of the original protection order and that proper service has been effected on the respondent before such a protection order may be varied or set aside.

2.16 Clause 17 effects technical amendments to section 11.

2.17 Section 12 regulates the jurisdiction of courts in respect of applications for domestic violence protection orders. Clause 18 amends subsections (1) and (2) to clarify that a court within the area in which the complainant or respondent permanently or temporarily resides, studies, carries on business or is employed, has jurisdiction to grant a protection order.

- (a) the service of documents is to be effected immediately on the person affected by it at their residence or place of business, employment or study in the prescribed manner by the clerk of the court, the sheriff or a peace officer, or as the court may direct;
- (b) where the complainant and respondent share the same residence, the service of documents referred to in sections 5(3)(a) or (4) and 6(5)(a), must be effected by hand on the respondent personally, and the documents referred to in sections 5(7)(c) and 6(5)(b) must be effected by hand on the complainant personally; and
- (c) if is satisfied that service of any document cannot be effected in the prescribed manner, the court may make an order allowing service to be effected in the form or manner specified in that order.

2.19 Clause 20 effects the following amendments to section 15 of the Act, which deals with cost orders:

- (a) The heading to section 15 is substituted for the heading “Orders as to costs of service and directions”;
- (b) the current provision is renumbered as subsection (1) and is amended to provide that the court may, having regard to the conduct of the parties as far as it may be relevant, make an order as to costs against any party if it is satisfied that such party has acted frivolously, vexatiously or unreasonably;
- (c) a new subsection (2) is inserted to provide that notwithstanding subsection (1), the court must make an order as to costs against the respondent in respect of the service of any process or documents, the obtaining of information contemplated in section 5B(1)(b), the removal of, or disabling of access to an electronic communication contemplated in section 5B(6), or for providing the information referred to in section 5B(7).

2.20 Clause 21 amends section 16 by substituting the reference “Supreme Court Act, 1959” with that of “Superior Courts Act, 2013”.

2.21 Clause 22 amends section 17 of the Act, to further provide for offences and penalties.

2.22 Clause 23 amends section 18(1) to provide that a prosecutor may not refuse to institute a prosecution or withdraw a charge, in respect of a contravention of section 17(1)(a) or in respect of any offence against a person in a domestic relationship—

- involving the infliction of grievous bodily harm or a dangerous wound against the complainant or a related person; or
- where the complainant or a related person is threatened with a weapon, unless that prosecutor is authorised thereto by the relevant Director of Public Prosecutions.

2.23 Clause 24 inserts sections 18A and 18B in the Act.

2.23.1 Section 18A empowers the Director-General: Justice and Constitutional Development to issue directives with which clerks of the court must comply in the execution of their functions in terms of the Act. These directives must ensure that adequate disciplinary steps will be taken against a clerk of the court who fails to comply with those directives.

2.23.2 Section 18B provides for the issuing of directives by the Directors-General: Health, Social Development, Basic Education, Higher Education and Training as well as Communications and Digital Technologies to regulate matters which are reasonably necessary or expedient to be provided for and which are to be followed by functionaries and other relevant persons when dealing with incidents of domestic violence, in order to achieve the objects of the Act. These directives must, inter alia, provide for—

- services to be provided to a complainant who is a child, a person with a disability or an older person;

Where the regulations may result in expenditure for the State, it must be made in consultation with the Cabinet member responsible for finance. Any regulations made in terms of section 19, must be submitted to Parliament prior to publication thereof in the Gazette.

2.24. Clause 26 inserts a new section 19A in the Act. This section requires the directives and the regulations be submitted to Parliament with 12 months from the date of assent to the Bill. 2.26 Clause 28 deals with the short title and commencement of the Act.

3. BODIES, DEPARTMENTS AND PARTIES CONSULTED

A workshop for experts and relevant departments was held on 10 February 2020 to scrutinise a first draft of the Bill. Thereafter the augmented Bill was subjected to a consultation process at the end of February 2020. Comments were collated and changes were effected to the Bill to the extent needed. ### 4. FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS

- 4.1 Although section 6A which establishes an integrated electronic repository will have financial implications for the State, the integrated electronic repository will form part of the upgrading of the integrated criminal justice system. The financial implications associated therewith will form part of the existing budget allocated for this upgrade.
- 4.2 Clause 10 will have financial implications for the State. Clause 5B(10)(c), among others, requires the State to pay the electronic communications service providers the costs for providing the contact information of respondents in certain circumstances. It is not possible to quantify the number of matters in which the State will have to bear these costs. Clause 8 does, however, contain a provision in terms of which the court can make an order, directing the respondent to refund the State for the costs so incurred.
- 4.3 Clause 24 which provides for the issuing of directives for clerks of the court and for relevant officials in the Departments of Health, Social Development, Basic Education, Higher Education and Training and Communications and Digital Technologies will necessitate training. It is anticipated that this training will form part of existing departmental budgets allocated for training.
- 4.4 Clause 25 empowers the Minister to make certain regulations, among others, regarding financial assistance to be provided for by the State to a complainant or respondent who does not have the means to pay for fees of any service of process or documents in terms of the Bill or to a witness who attends any proceedings in terms of the Bill. Regulations may also be made regarding the granting of legal aid at State expense in appropriate cases in consultation with Legal Aid South Africa to the complainant, respondent, a person with a disability, an older person or a child in order to assist them with an application for a protection order. Again, it is not possible to quantify the number of matters in which the State will have to bear these costs. Any regulation to be made which may result in expenditure for the State, must be made in consultation with the Cabinet member responsible for finance. These financial implications will be considered when regulations are prepared.

5. IMPLICATIONS FOR PROVINCES

There are no implications for the provinces.

6. PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

- 6.1 The State Law Advisers and the Department of Justice and Constitutional Development are of the opinion that the Bill should be dealt with in accordance with the procedure set out in section 75 of the Constitution, since it contains no provisions to which the procedure set out in section 74 or 76 of the Constitution applies.
- 6.2 The Constitution distinguishes between four categories of Bills as follows: Bills amending the Constitution (section 74); Ordinary Bills not affecting provinces (section 75); Ordinary Bills affecting provinces (section 76); and Money Bills (section 77). A Bill must be correctly classified or tagged; otherwise it would be constitutionally invalid.
- 6.3 The Bill has been considered against the provisions of the Constitution relating to the tagging of Bills, and against the functional areas listed in Schedule 4<sup>1</sup> to the Constitution.
- 6.4 The crux of tagging has been explained by the courts, especially the Constitutional Court in the case of Tongoane and Others v Minister of Agriculture and Land Affairs and Others 2010 (8) BCLR 741 (CC). The Court, in its judgment, stated as follows:
 “[58] What matters for the purpose of tagging is not the substance or the true purpose and effect of the Bill, rather, what matters is whether the provisions of the Bill “in substantial measure fall within a functional area listed in schedule 4”. This statement refers to the test to be adopted when tagging Bills. This test for classification or tagging is different from that used by this court to characterise a Bill in order to determine legislative competence. This “involves the determination of the subject matter or the substance of the legislation, its essence, or true purpose and effect, that is, what the [legislation] is about. (footnote omitted)
 [60] The test for tagging must be informed by its purpose. Tagging is not concerned with determining the sphere of government that has the competence to legislate on a matter. Nor is the process concerned with preventing interference in the legislative competence of another sphere of government. The process is concerned with the question of how the Bill should be considered by the provinces and in the NCOP, and how a Bill must be considered by the provincial legislatures depends on whether it affects the provinces. The more it affects the interests, concerns and capacities of the provinces, the more say the provinces should have on its content.”.
- 6.5 In light of what the Constitutional Court stated in the abovementioned case, the test essentially entails that “any Bill whose provisions in substantial measure” affects the provinces must be classified to follow the section 76 procedure.
- 6.6 The Bill seeks to amend provisions of the Domestic Violence Act, 1998 dealing with the issuing of a protection order (either interim or final) against a respondent who commits an act of domestic violence against a person in a domestic relation or a related person, and the arrest of the respondent for any breach of the protection order. In the final analysis, it is our view that the subject matter of the Bill does not fall within any of the functional areas listed in Schedule 4 or Schedule 5 to the Constitution. Consequently, we are of the opinion that this Bill is an ordinary Bill not affecting provinces and that it must be dealt with in accordance with the procedure set out in section 75 of the Constitution.

7. REFERRAL TO NATIONAL HOUSE OF TRADITIONAL LEADERS

The opinion is held that it is not necessary to refer this Bill to the National House of Traditional Leaders in terms of section 18(1)(a) of the Traditional Leadership and Governance Framework Act, 2003 (Act No. 41 of 2003), since it does not contain provisions pertaining to customary law or customs of traditional communities.
